Discover ▾

How It's Always Been

👁 4 ✔ 0 ⭐ 1

Chapter 1 by Unicow274

I can feel the cold hands on my back and neck.

What is she? Can we touch her? What the heck is wrong with her?

All of their words blur into a long line of gibberish as I am pushed into the open. All of the people stare at me with eyes of curiosity.

I growl at them and bare my sharp teeth. But they don't move, they only snap pictures and laugh and ask more questions.

The hands release me and I fall forward, white hair falling into my face as I hit the ground. Cold stone.

"This is our newest experiment. Her name is Jenna, and her parents gave her to us for the World War III Colony Project. We were going to harvest her limbs, but then we found a new use for her. She excelled in everything, which was perfect for the project," explains Doctor Cassie Yan, her eyes sparkling with a cruel and pleased beauty, "I am sorry to say that the rest of the project is classified, along with the other kids."

"Yan," says Doctor Michael Dobberglys, motioning towards me. His voice lowers to a whisper as he adjusts his white coat. But I can hear him because of my improved hearing. "Patient 1847, Aden, is having a glitch and I must get back to him. He keeps calling for Jenna--"

See more of Story Wars

She puts her taser away and I feel her panic, which is quickly replaced with calmness.

"Open the door and give me the keys and your weapons. Give me the password to the systems, too." I say.

Dr. Yan hesitates.

"Do it!" I scream. "Don't test me. You don't want to test me, Cassie. You and I both know what will happen then. We both know all too well."

She does as I say, and I knock Dr. D out before I run out the door.

I hear the screams and camera flashes and such behind me as I run for the door to the experimenting cells, where I can hear Aden mumbling in his half-coma-glitch: Run.

Write a draft for chapter 2 of 8

🛈 You need to login before writing - click here

Continue the story

☐ Flag as mature ☐ receive feedback Submit draft

See more of Story Wars

Login or Create new account